

Being a senior in Wilmington has always been fun, but it got just a little bit better this week as the Interact Club put the finishing touches on the new Bocce Court at the Buzzell Senior Center. Wednesday morning Terry Marciello put a ball in play as Laura Pickett, Dorothy Sullivan, Gayle Regan and Anna Giannotti take notes under the watchful eye of Jack Cushing.

WHS Interact Club Builds Bocce Court for Seniors

Let the games begin!

Thanks to the Wilmington High School Interact Club, senior citizens will have another activity to enjoy at the Buzzell Senior Center on School Street. The Interact Club, which is the largest organization at the school with 160 members and is an extension of the town's Rotary Club, will celebrate the grand opening of a bocce court at the center on Thursday, Aug. 2 at 4 pm. According to Jack Cushing, an advisor of Interact, the group of students decided to pursue the court for their community service project this year because it was a fun activity for the seniors to enjoy while also exercising.

The idea first sparked when Cushing invited the senior citizens to use his own court, and it became clear they enjoyed it immensely. According to former Interact President Patrick Giroux, 18, the group embraced the idea of building a court for the seniors because it would be a great way to help them enjoy more outdoor activities.

"They can get some outdoor activity and go outside, play against their friends, and just have a good time," Giroux said.

Cushing knows a thing or two about the sport, which involves players rolling small metal or plastic balls across a rectangular court in attempt to reach closest to a target ball compared to their competitors; the long-time Wilmington resident and Rotary Club member operates two fully-equipped

Tarr fights for Wilmington's Glen Road / Middlesex Ave intersection funding

BOSTON - During last Tuesday's full formal Senate session, the Massachusetts State Senate engrossed a transportation bond bill that has authorized $820,000 for safety improvements at the intersection of Glen Road, Middlesex Avenue and Wildwood Street. Working with local officials, Senate Minority Leader Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) was able to include the measure within the original text of the bill that was released by the Senate Committee on Ways and Means.

"The intersection of Glen Road and Middlesex Avenue is one of the most challenging and heavily traversed confluence of roadways in Wilmington, and one that town leaders have consistently identified as a priority," said Senator Tarr.

High School project on hold

BY CHRISTINE KENNEY
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - Joanne Benton, Wilmington Public School Superintendent, told the Crier the first part of the Wilmington High School building project, the installation of an artificial turf field, was supposed to be completed by the end of the summer, and the current gymnasium was supposed to be demolished by September. However, on July 25 and July 27, two separate appeals were filed—one from an abutter of the property, and another from a group of residents self-dubbed the 10 Resident Group—which may delay the project for several months.

The appeals are the most recent in a series of resident discontent with the building project, which voters and

Special Town Meeting overwhelmingly approved last year. The appeals began after the Wilmington Conservation Commission issued an order of conditions—or a document listing environmental requirements the project must meet—moving the building project forward as originally planned. Gerald O'Reilly, the abutter, and the 10

Three Democrats, one Republican vie for vacant State Rep. seat

BY MARCY RAGUCCI

WILMINGTON - As reported in last week's Town Crier, on Saturday, June 23rd, State Representative Charles A. "Charley" Murphy announced his retirement. Since incumbent

Murphy, a Democrat from Burlington, announced his retirement after the June 1st cutoff date, his name is the only one that will appear in the primary ballot in any party.

Burlington Town Clerk Amy Warfield told the Crier two or three candidates are mounting write-in campaigns on the Democratic ballot in the primary election. Those candidates are Virginia Mooney, a former Burlington Selectman, David Fionda, who has served as a Burlington Town Meeting Member as well as

Dust, groundwater, blasting should be monitored at 'Ledges' site

BY PATRICK BLAIS
Staff Writer

WOBURN - A blasting expert advised the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) to monitor rock excavation and ground water at the Ledges at Woburn site, should the city grant a modified comprehensive permit for the affordable housing project.

During the last meeting on the controversial 168-unit development, James McGowan, a city-retained consultant, believed the finished slope of the blasted rock needed to be decided upon before any construction activity starts.

"There needs to be an assessment of the angle of the rocks, as well as what I call a fall zone," he opined. The proposed housing development would be built upon elevated terrain at 1042 Main St. near the Wilmington line. Because of the amount of edge in the area, the petitioner, Woburn-based The Dolben Company, needs to blast and cart away as much as 418,000 cubic yards of earth.

In some cases, the end result will leave behind rock croppings that stand around 70-feet high, causing concern from abutters about falling rocks and other safety considerations. Last June, a consultant from Miller Engineering, hired by the applicant, insisted that a near vertical rock slope appeared to be plausible, based upon models.

However, he claimed the final angle of those walls can't be guaranteed until most of the blasting work is already completed.

During the most recent ZBA meeting, McGowan dissented with that opinion, arguing that the slope should be pre-determined and agreed upon prior to construction, while a proper fall zone, or space where rocks could safely collapse to the ground, also needed to be established.

Veterans suicide rates alarming:

Efforts made to fight the trend

BY SHERYL WALSH
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - According to Annemarie Matulis, Director of the Greater Taunton Suicide Prevention Task Force, 20% of all suicides in the U.S. are veterans. "That's even more astounding when we consider that today's military consists of only 1/2 of 1% of the entire population of the country," she says. "This is not a crisis. This is a pandemic."

Wilmington veterans return home to family, friends, and a grateful community, but they still face the many challenges of transition. Feelings of being "disconnected" could occur as they readjust to their environment.

Noted New York psychiatrist Dr. David Kahn, an authority on suicide prevention, says one key to suicide prevention is a sense of belonging. He thinks social connection is the most important initial step in preventing suicide. Such connections and other help are available to veterans and their loved ones through several important sources.

Local and State Services

Wilmington's Veterans Agent Lou Cimaglia provides information and services to transitioning veterans on a daily basis. "There's a lot of help out there," he explains as he describes how fortunate we are in Massachusetts to have the extensive system of veterans agents. Cimaglia works with the Massachusetts Department of Veterans Services and is an expert on what is available. Programs provide financial assistance, job placement, health care and many other services that alleviate stress, depression, and anxiety issues.

He encourages veterans and their families to contact him to take full advantage of those programs including Wilmington's informal veterans groups and meetings. Referring specifically to returning vets, he says, "A big part of my job is keeping them in the forefront, because the transition back is not easy." He can be reached at 978-694-2040. His office is at 141 Shawsheen Avenue.

Cimaglia points out that a valuable source of information is the website www.massvetsadvisor.org. The site describes the Massachusetts programs. In addition, the Mass.Gov Veterans Services' Website Health and Well being section addresses suicide prevention and help. The web site describes the Statewide Advocacy for Veterans' Empowerment (SAVE) program. It explains, "The program's primary mission is prevention of suicide and mental health distress through the identification of issues facing veterans when they return from service and proactively providing them with access to benefits and services that may address these issues and result in positive transitions back to civilian life." SAVE is a liaison and facilitator for the veteran in need.

Leadership at all levels recognizes there is still an unfortunate stigma associated with asking for and receiving mental health care or any other assistance. Efforts persist to counter this. Cimaglia is a fan of the veterans' agency saying "It

Resident Group filed appeals to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), which after a thorough investigation issued a Superseding Order of Conditions (SOC). This issuance overruled the Conservation Commission's order, but also pushed the project forward essentially as it was originally planned. The two appellants are now appealing the Superseding Order, potentially bringing the issue in front of a DEP administrative judge at an adjudicatory hearing.

The Ten Resident Group appeal highlights several environmental concerns, including a claim that the DEP's Superseding Order of Conditions did not adequately require project applicant Town Manager Michael Caira to comply with Wetlands Regulations. Also among the list of complaints in the appeal, submitted by Kevin MacDonald, spokesperson for the group, are off-site mitigation, activity and use limitation, and issues with storm water management.

But, what does it mean for the project? According to Benton, the best case scenario would be that a final decision could be reached "in several months." And while it's too soon to predict how much the delay will cost the town, Benton fears the cost of the project will increase remarkably.

"Along with additional legal fees, designer fees, construction costs, etcetera, we expect that, should the project experience a lengthy delay due to the appeals, the project will cost significantly more than currently estimated," Benton said.

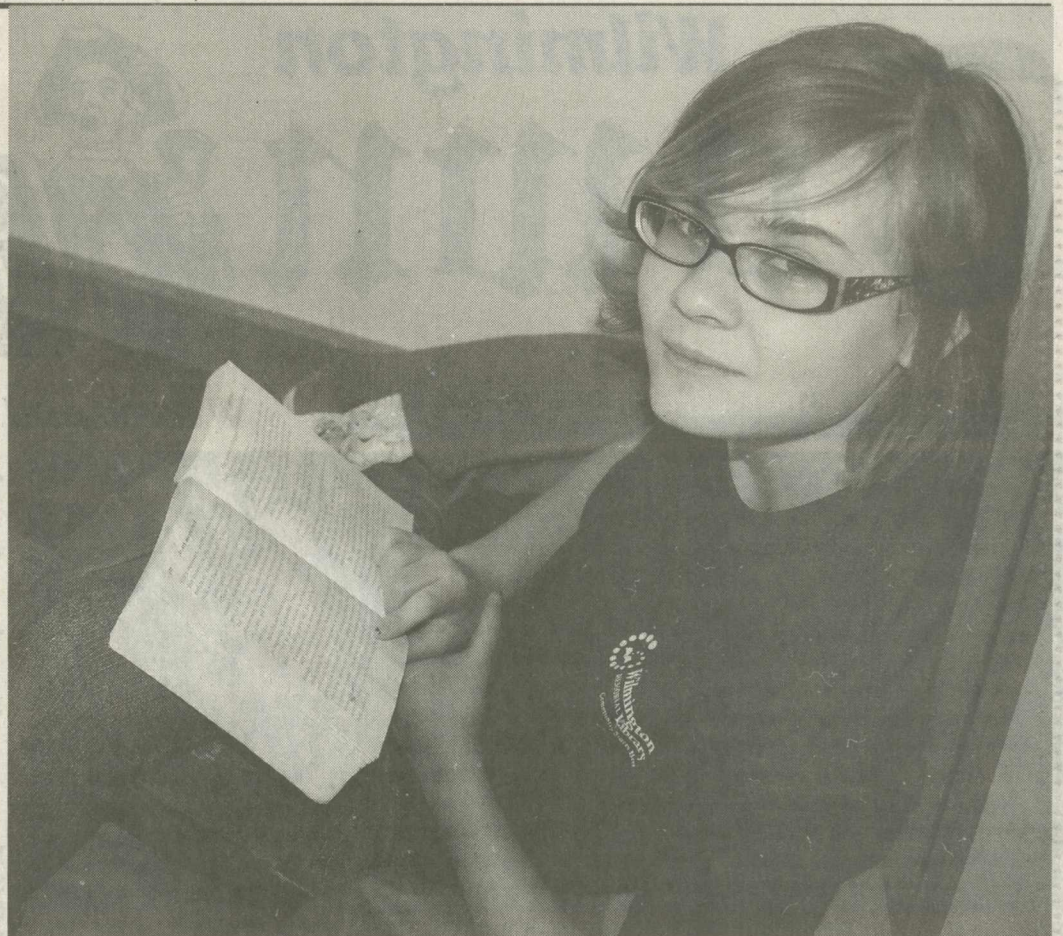

Michael Newhouse, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said he and his board are committed to the new high school project.

"Residents should be assured that the Town is committed to defending DEP's superseding order of conditions the 'SOC,' which is the subject of this appeal, as the SOC would enable the Town to move forward with the same High School project as was previously approved by the Wilmington Conservation Commission and supported overwhelmingly by Wilmington voters at both the ballot box and Special Town Meeting," said Newhouse.

Referring to the Ten Resident Group appeal, Newhouse added: "It really is a travesty that a few individuals with an axe to grind would abuse this process, which is available through state law, to obstruct the clear will of the residents. To think that the students of Wilmington should be delayed in realizing the benefits of this much needed facility, and that the taxpayers of Wilmington should absorb the exorbitant cost of that delay, based on such frivolous arguments as 'the Pedway has been used by area children as a ramp for testing soap box derby racers,' or because it would cost a handful of seldom used parking spaces at Town Park, is offensive and outrageous."

Although she said academics at the High School will not necessarily be affected by the project delays, Benton did note the athletic schedules and venues may need to be altered as the appeal process progresses.

possible candidate Joseph Impemba, currently a Planning Board member.

Warfield shared information on sample ballots for the Primary Election on Thursday, September 6, 2012 with the Crier. Voters will be given one ballot if they would like to write in the name and address of their candidate and they must fill in the oval next to their candidate's name. Voters who have been supplied stickers (2 1/4 inches x 1 1/4 inches) by their candidate will be given a different ballot. In addition to placing the sticker on the their ballot, they must also fill in the oval next to their candidate's name.

The Democratic primary winner will face current Burlington Selectman Walter Zenkin who is also running a write-in campaign on the Republican ticket after missing the deadline to get on the ballot as an unenrolled candidate.

These candidates in the 21st Middlesex District must wage campaigns in Burlington, Bedford, and Precinct 3 in Wilmington.

In order to win the nomination, a write-in candidate must get the most votes with a total of at least 150 votes. If Murphy wins the primary, he can withdraw from the November ballot and the town Democratic committees in Burlington, Bedford, and Precinct 3 in Wilmington would need to select the nominee for the party. David Fionda offers, "I am running because I passionately believe that it is time for Beacon Hill to put people first. When Charley decided to retire, I saw a great opportunity to take my community service work to another level." Fionda will focus energy on issues that he believes will help his constituents including affordable health care for working families, smart growth for towns, tax and financial relief for seniors, fiscal accountability in government, quality education, and economic growth to provide new jobs.

Virginia Mooney states her reasons for running, "The opening came and Murphy wasn't going to run so I thought I would go for it. There are a lot of things in the legislature that need to be changed." Mooney cited her priorities once elected as taking care of senior citizens, keeping the tax rate low, getting money back to cities and towns and promoting jobs to get people back to work.

When asked for comments about his candidacy, Joseph Impemba replied, "At this time I am strongly considering my candidacy. There are a couple of things I need to consider first before I make that decision." Impemba will inform the Town Crier of his decision as soon as it has been reached.

boce courts in his backyard at 72 Middlesex Avenue. Cushing heads a league on Monday and Tuesday nights during the summer months, overseeing 16 teams that compete for fun. At the conclusion of the season, he hosts a barbecue for league members to enjoy. But Cushing is perhaps best known for his annual tournament in June, the proceeds of which are put toward a $1,000 scholarship distributed by the Rotary Club to a deserving student. Not surprisingly, Cushing knows a thing or two about community service as well, which made him the ideal advisor to help the students build a bocce court.

The 480 feet course-- "regulation size," as Cushing described-- took about three weeks to build, the materials were paid for by the money the club had raised through various projects. After the grand opening on Thursday, the seniors can form their own league and play during convenient times for them.

Cushing gives all the credit to the students for bringing the project to fruition.

"This was one thing the kids decided they wanted to do for the seniors," Cushing said. "They do their own fundraising. They did one specifically for this."

Giroux, along with incoming Interact President Brooks Carter, 17, and the rest of the group, worked diligently to provide the seniors with something fun to do while they visit the Buzzell Senior Center.

"We do a lot with the senior citizens. We really value them, and we appreciate them and their dedication during their time in Wilmington," Giroux said.

Cushing was happy to provide them with a sport he is passionate about and that is easy to learn and play.

"Anybody can play it. You don't have to be an athlete to play," Cushing said.

The US Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is striving to ensure that all veterans and their loved ones are aware of the Veterans Crisis Line. Their information is available on their web site www.mentalhealth.va.gov/suicide_prevention/index.asp. They encourage people to "Act Now." And offer the following options:

Many veterans may not show any signs of being in crisis, but some do. Veterans who are considering suicide often show signs of mental health issues ranging from depression to low self-esteem to hopelessness. The Veterans Crisis Line web page lists signs of crisis as changes in behavior. They can include inability to sleep, withdrawal, neglecting themselves, losing interest in activities, feelings of failure or guilt, performing poorly, and engaging in risky activities. A full list as well as additional information is available on their web site <http://veteranscrisisline.net/SignsOfCrisis/Identifying.aspx>.

To reach as many people as possible, the VA is coordinating with communities and partner groups nationwide. Support is available if ever and whenever they need it.

In addition, each VA Medical Center has a suicide prevention coordinator to make sure Veterans receive needed counseling and services. There are numerous VA medical facilities in the Wilmington general area which include outpatient clinics in Boston and Haverhill, hospitals in Bedford and Jamaica Plain, and a medical center in Manchester, NH. Cimaglia refers (and often accompanies) people to the Lowell Vet Center. Located at 10 George Street in Lowell, the outpatient clinic's phone number is 978-453-1151. Walk-ins are welcomed. No insurance is required, veterans only need their DD 214 discharge paper or military

ID.

Federal DOD Services

The Department of Defense also focuses a concerted effort on suicide prevention and services for military members (both past and present) and their loved ones. In welcoming statements for the annual joint Department of Defense and Department of Veterans Affairs Suicide prevention conference, the two agencies declared,

"Every warrior and veteran death by suicide is a tragic outcome and regardless of the numbers or rates, one suicide is too many. Eliminating suicide among our warriors and veterans is our ultimate goal."

Under the direction of the Defense Center of Excellence for Psychological Health, the military provides services to vets, active duty members, and anyone else (family, friends, clergy, clinicians, and support groups) working this issue with veterans. Their 24/7 Outreach Center can be reached at 866-966-1020 or by email at resources@dcoeoutreach.org. Visit www.dcoe.health.mil/24-7help.aspx for additional information.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to the Fire Dept.

Dear Editor
I am writing to thank the Wilmington Fire Dept for their quick response to my urgent call regarding an over heated electrical circuit breaker - moments before it would have ignited into a fire. Lt. Daniel Hurley Jr. couldn't do enough to insure the safety of my home as well as myself and daughter. Not only did they shut my power off, Dan Hurley stayed with me in candlelight to wait for Reading Municipal Light to come and remove the power from my home to the electrical poles from the street. He called Fred Sutter, the town Electrical Inspector, who let me know the electrical box needed to be replaced.

The following day at 9 a.m. Dan Hurley came back, knowing this is a difficult time, not having any power in 90 plus degrees.

The incident occurred on Sunday, July 16 at 11:30 a.m. I awoke to the smell of smoke and burnt plastic. While I had an electrician come and repair the damage, again Dan Hurley came back and said he will contact Reading Municipal Light to reconnect the power back to the home.

I am so grateful for the compassion and quick responses to all that helped save my home from, just minutes from disaster.

Sincerely
Sheila Avola
Wilmington

Who's opinion is it?

Dear Editor
I was puzzled by a piece that appeared on the Opinion page of the July 25 issue of the Crier.

The article, which bore the headline "Tierney slams Tisei for Chamber Endorsement," carried no byline and was not marked as an editorial. If it were an Op Ed piece, as the column above it was, it should have been signed.

In fact, it did not read like an Op Ed piece or an editorial. With a Peabody dateline, it appeared to be a press release from Tierney's office - although, curiously, it never included Tierney's first name. If the Crier were to carry something like this at all, it would seem that it should have appeared in the news section and to have been identified for what it was - a political press release.

The question now is whether the Crier is going to allot similar space for a rebuttal from Richard Tisei and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Both were pilloried in this article.

Jack McDonough
Tewksbury

You caught us! That indeed should have indicated that it was a press release from Tierney's office. It was in response to a press release from Tisei's office the previous week which the Crier printed on page 6 of that issue.

Miceli votes to unionize your child care

Dear Editor
As if affordable day care for working families isn't expensive enough, Rep. Jim Miceli voted "yes" on Gov. Deval Patrick's bill (H 3986) that allows your child care workers to form unions. To qualify, a provider working out of their home must receive at least one state voucher for providing services, currently priced at $28/day. The theory: "together they can" lobby state child-care bureaucrats for more of your tax money by using union muscle. Even the business owner must join the union. The vote's anti-business result?

Providers can stop taking vouchers, raise their rates, or go out of business. None of these options helps working families. Rep. Miceli: why make it harder for working mothers in Wilmington and Tewksbury to find day care slots? Go figure.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The vote was 117 to 32. We await Mr Miceli's response.

Town Crier Trip Report

Day trip to Chatham

By JAYNE W. MILLER
News Editor

CHATHAM - Typically visitors to the Outer Cape and the charms and beaches of Eastham, Orleans, and Wellfleet, my family decided to take a day trip to Chatham. Drawn by great white shark sightings initially, we decided to fit a day visit into our schedule. We weren't disappointed.

We began with a Monomoy Island Excursions two-hour sail to see the thousands of seals that make the barrier island their home. The cruise was really more one hour of getting out to the seals, watching them frolic for awhile, check us out, and then heading back for another hour of exploring closer to shore. I confess, I was hoping to see some gory shark action, but from Harwichport the sharks are not a problem. Rather, the big beasts are out on the Atlantic side of Chatham. Someone ought to alert the seals over there, so that they would come down to Harwichport and stop making a lunch of themselves.

We enjoyed the cruise, giving the family a chance to know a little more about the area (for instance, what is a 'weir'), with plenty of time left in the day to enjoy a leisurely lunch, shopping, and still be able to park the car. Parking is a rare and precious thing in Chatham. If you stay in Chatham, walk to anything in the downtown area as much as possible. There's no earthly reason a relatively sane person could want to park a car in Chatham center.

We chose to find lunch in the thick of things at the Wild Goose Tavern (wildgoosetavern.com). The sign was beautiful, the outdoor patio right on the bustling Main Street, where preppers in their gosh-gollywog togs strutted their latest Vineyard Vines accessories (which I do actually rather like). Eat inside for air conditioning, outside for people watching. But beware; you're paying for being seen, not for the quality of the lunchtime fare, which was standard publican. Next time I go, I'll eat at The Chatham Squire (thesquire.com) just down the street, which is far more casual and has more personality.

Chatham's shops are adorable, chic, and actually offer quite a bit of value. Check them all out. We loved the Yellow Umbrella Bookshop - a tiny little slice of a shop that had just what we were looking for, all the new popular reads, come amazing antiques and rare finds, and a thriving used section - the sort of book you wouldn't mind if it fell off the boat or into the sand.

We also liked Yankee Ingenuity (yankee-ingenuity.com). This is the sort of place you visit every time you go, to check out the new offerings. I found a delightful silver cuff bracelet, on which I receive frequent compliments, for just $12. Find mermaids, maritime dribs and drabs, and eclectic jewelry, unique things for your home; this shop is great for both guys and gals (and gift givers).

The Chatham Sign Shop (chathamssignshop.com) makes the most exquisite signs for home or business. Located in a small working shop behind Main Street, the artisans will take time to design your sign. Famous for their hand-crafted gold leaf signs, the prices are relatively affordable, fully customizable, and a lasting reminder of a great vacation.

made fudge, hand-dipped chocolates, dipped fruit, candy by the pound, and saltwater taffy. Adults try to get out with their waistlines intact. Sugar-free candies are also available. Everything is good. Fuel-up for an afternoon of shopping.

By no means is this an exhaustive list, but you might need more than a day to do it all. If you stay, check out The Queen Anne Inn online. It's not inexpensive, but delightful for a festive occasion. Children eat free, its ideally located, has all the amenities, historical provenance, and more. Check it out at Queenanneinn.com.

This is a 'weir', a rare and ancient form of fishing trap. You can see one in Nantucket Sound.

A stop at The Chatham Jam and Jelly Shop is a must if you are in the area. Shops around the Cape carry a selection of these homemade treats, but this unassuming little shop, in a cape-style house along Route 28, offers the complete selection. We liked the peach, apple pie (just like real), raspberry rhubarb and Maine wild blueberry.

Miceli backs bill

Banning Cyper Cafés

BOSTON: State Representative James Miceli (D-Wilmington-Tewksbury) joined his colleagues in the Legislature in sending a final bill to the Governor that will ban illegal gambling activities at "cyber cafés" throughout Massachusetts.

"Cyber Cafés of this type have caused problems in the past and this is one way to protect the public," said Representative Miceli.

"Cyber Cafés" sell internet time in which patrons can play online slots and other games on the premises. Patrons can then win "points" in the video games which can then be redeemed for cash at the "cyber café". Past investigations by Attorney General Martha Coakley, have revealed that "cyber cafés" can offer illegal online gambling through the sale of internet access. Although the Attorney General is curbing this behavior through regulation, this legislation is intended to further protect interests of consumers across the Commonwealth with respect to the "cyber cafés".

This bill establishes a new crime of "conducting or promoting a sweepstakes that is executed through the use of the entertaining display of an electronic machine." Failure to comply would result in a penalty of up to $250,000 per offending machine and/or imprisonment of up to 15 years in the state prison. However, the state lottery, pari-mutuel wagering on horse races, bingo and charitable gaming, are exempt.

Shannon Fahey to wed Justin Merrifield

WILMINGTON - John and Cheryl Fahey of Longview Road in Wilmington are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Shannon Marie Fahey to Justin William Merrifield of Boston.

The bride-to-be is a 2008 graduate of Stonehill College where she earned a Bachelor's degree in Criminology and Political Science; she earned a Master of Public Administration and Master of Science in Criminal Justice from Suffolk University in 2010. She is a Re-entry Program Coordinator with the Massachusetts Department of Corrections.

The groom-elect is the son of Allen and Cynthia Merrifield of Pittsford, New York. He earned a Bachelor's degree in International Relations from Boston University in 2008; he was awarded Masters degrees in Political Science and Public Administration from the same institution in 2012. He is employed as an Assistant Manager at Fresh City, and is a volunteer with the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary.

A fall 2013 or 2014 wedding is planned.

Did Wilmington seem a little quiet this weekend? That's because 89 (49 kids and 36 adults) were celebrating Christmas in July at Yogi Bear Campground in Ashland, NH. It started 4 years ago with 7 families going camping for the weekend, the next year it grew to 12 and the past two years it's been 18 families. Careful examination will show that they are all wearing Wildcat shirts, with a few notable exceptions. One family, the Folletts, are from Tewksbury (Redmen shirts). The tie die shirt has a Wildcat pawprint on it. His kids got him it for Father's Day so he wanted to wear that one. Once again, a sign of how close knit this town can be. Courtesy photo

Tewksbury seniors find one way to build strong bodies

Bone Builders program a success

By JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

TEWKSBURY - The Bone Builders Program lives up to its namesake.

The program, which operates out of the Tewksbury Senior Center, aims to develop in its participants bone strength, offer nutritional information, and address potential environmental risks. It was developed by researchers at Tufts some twelve years ago, and it receives federal funding.

It is run by Community Teamwork, and it has expanded to six Senior Centers. Tewksbury is one of the first in Massachusetts to offer this popular service. "We've really grown. It's just been a very popular program," said Joan Aseltine, who is the program's coordinator. "I think everybody enjoys it," she said.

According to Aseltine, trained volunteers guide participants through the various exercises. She described the program as "gradual." People must make a commitment of at least six months in order to achieve success.

She stressed that participants don't have to keep a specific pace. "We're all there to have fun," she said.

Tewksbury has five leaders: Linda Hattori, Elinor Casey, Judy Coleman, Jane Bensey, and Diana Kyricos.

She recommended that interested participants observe a class. "I think if people saw that, they could see the class is for them," she said. Approval, she said, must come from a physician.

They've received good feedback. "I think the way we've grown speaks for itself," she said.

One woman said that the class had "raised [her] spirit." Another noted that the class had changed her life. She said that those interested should bring water and wear comfortable, loose clothing.

She is also thankful for the support she has received from the senior center. She said that they have helped pay for the weights they utilize. They have also advertised the program.

Linda Brabant, who is the director of the Senior Center, called Bone Builders "an excellent program."

"They've been wonderful,"

she said. She called them "very independent."

"I'm very happy that we have the program here," she said. "I'm thankful for CTA for coming out to the area."

She said that she can see the effect the program is having: both classes are full. Thirty-five to forty people are taking the class, she said.

"I see a lot of people who have some possible balance problems taking the classes," she said. "Some people who can't do the aerobics there take the Bone Builders class."

"There are a lot of pluses to it. I've seen a lot of people become more organized," she later added.

There is a "full spectrum" of people taking the course. Right now, though, "it's all women." Aseltine, too, noted this, and she encouraged men to sign up.

Classes are offered Monday and Wednesday from 12:40 p.m. - 1:40 p.m. and Monday and Thursday from 2:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m. Those who are interested should contact Aseltine at 978-654-5682 or jaseltine@comteam.org.

LET'S HEAR IT!!! Your Two Cents

Friday morning and all I smell is hog waste outside. Why is it that everyone has to responsibly dispose of their waste except for one man? Our trash is carted away, recycling in its proper place, and all other waste goes into a septic tank or sewage system...unless you're Krochmal C.A.F.O. and then apparently you get to dump thousands of gallons of your waste out in the woods behind our homes? Imagine if everyone decided to dump all of our waste in the woods...

I took my 2 children to the Tewksbury Rec. Department tennis courts on Tuesday, there was a group of boys playing basketball there. I couldn't believe the language of these boys, it was disgusting. I heard a certain 4 letter word yelled 15 times in 10 minutes...I stopped counting after that. My daughter who did tennis lessons there this summer later told me this happened every day she did tennis there, that the boys were spoken to and continued to do this!!!! If your a parent and reading this and your child frequents this place and plays basketball please have a chat with your child, this is a public place with little kids. Next time I hear this kind of talk I will be calling the Tewksbury Police's non emergency number which I now have.

Michelle Caplan graduates from Union College

SCHENECTADY, NY Michelle Caplan of Tewksbury graduated from Union College on Sunday, June 10, during the College's 218th Commencement exercises.

Caplan, a Psychology major, received a Bachelor of Science degree.

Before the 530 Union College graduates received their degrees, MSNBC talk show host Dylan Ratigan, a 1994 alum of the college, gave an upbeat and energizing message for graduates nervous about leaving college to face the harsh realities of a world markedly different from the one when they entered Union. Ratigan is the host of "The Dylan Ratigan Show" and author of the New York Times best-seller "Greedy Bastards." He challenged the class to "throw out the rulebook and dive head first" into their individual pursuits, despite an uncertain future.

Union College offers programs in the liberal arts and engineering to 2,100 undergraduates of high academic promise and strong personal motivation. Union, with its long history of blending disciplines, is a leader in educating students to be engaged, innovative and ethical contributors to an increasingly diverse, global and technologically complex society.

Bike to Market Day this Sunday

WILMINGTON - What's coming up this Sunday at Wilmington Farmers Market? There's a lot going on!

For one thing, it will be Bike to Market Day. The first 25 families to arrive will receive a Wilmington Farmers Market canvas shopping bag. More importantly, this is a great opportunity to talk with Wilmington Pediatrics' Dr. Sandy Stephens about bicycle safety and etiquette, and to have Ben from Driven Bikes and Boards conduct a safety check on your bike.

If you bring your little ones, stop by the Market tent and pick up a scavenger hunt; it will give kids the chance to meet their local farmers and learn a little bit about where their fruits and vegetables come from.

Music will be provided by the eclectic folk band Katfish this week. They prize the various traditions of the Celtic realm and its American counterparts, including: Appalachian fiddle tunes, sea chanteys, jug band music, ballads, urban American labor songs, vaudevilian ditties, and drinking songs. Collectively, the three band members play guitar, fiddle, mandolin, tin whistle, bodhran and kazoo.

So strap on your helmet, check your bike tires, and drop by the market on Sunday to pick up some locally raised and produced foods, a little education, great music, and some fun. (You might want to bring a backpack to get your goodies home.)

The Wilmington Farmers Market is located on the Swain Green, across the street from the Common, next to the Fourth of July Building; hours are 10:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. every Sunday through September 30.

For a complete list of our vendors, the market calendar, community service opportunities, and answers to frequently asked questions, visit our website at www.wilmingtonfarmers-market.com.

Monitor 'Ledges' site

didn't agree with," said the city consultant about the Miller Engineering reports. "Part of that is that they have a near vertical rock slope. I didn't see any definition on that plan for a fall zone."

"What [the applicant and I] agreed to do is have a workshop, where we sit down...and come up with a plan to address these slopes," he furthered. "[That] needs to be done prior to your approval and it needs to be monitored to make sure it's done right."

Along similar lines, McGowan also recommended that dust monitors be positioned around the periphery of the construction zone to ensure that the amount of debris released into the atmosphere is minimized.

Those same devices could further be utilized to analyze the content of that dust, so that site monitors will know immediately if dangerous silica or other hazardous minerals are floating in the air around the neighborhood.

Quite a few North Woburn residents have expressed particular concern with crystalline silica, which can cause chronic respiratory problems, according to some studies.

ZBA Chairman Edward Robertson subsequently asked the petitioner's attorney, Wakefield-based Theodore Regnante, whether his client would consent to such a condition. While Regnante conclude that the imposition of dust mitigation measures is outside of the board's authority, he said his client will likely agree to such conditions.

"[D]ust is controlled with state regulations from [the Dept. of Environmental Protection] (DEP), the affordable housing specialist responded. "They have the ultimate authority, but I would assume if

Mr. McGowan is to continue on the project, appropriate Abatement and mitigation would be approved and agreed upon."

Lastly, McGowan suggested that testing wells be dug at the site to protect against the unlikely possibility that ground water becomes contaminated by pollution from the Olin Chemical site in Wilmington or construction equipment.

Admittedly not a ground-water specialist, the city-retained consultant doubted that contamination from Wilmington could reach the blasted area, since the site is higher than the source.

"This site is pretty high up. It's very unlikely that contamination from a site that's at a lower elevation could cause contamination at this site," he said. "The second aspect is control of explosives, oil from equipment, or anything else that could contaminate the water."

"From my perspective, there should be some monitoring wells put in before construction and [tested] during and after construction to prove to everybody that there hasn't been contamination of the groundwater."

Heavn'ly Donuts to open in August

BY JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - It is a familiar story: an immigrant with little or no money comes to the United States and starts a business. It takes off, and it becomes a stalwart. Its reputation grows.

Heavn'ly Donuts, which is based in Methuen, is no different.

And now, the company is coming to Wilmington.

"We're looking to open the week of August 20," said Jimmy Saragas, who is the son of George, the founder.

The last bit of equipment was ordered, and they're now working to finalize a date.

They came to town on a tip. Saragas's friend is from Winchester, and he suggested Wilmington.

Saragas said he fell in love with the location. He did say he's not familiar with Wilmington, but he expects that to change.

"I hope to get to know some people in town. It seems like a really nice place," he said.

"We had a great reception in North Reading. Hopefully, Wilmington is the same," he later added.

He said that he is not intimidated by Dunkin' Donuts.

"Dunkin' Donuts is everywhere," he said. Customers, too, "don't have to go" there.

Heavn'ly Donuts, he said, aims to provide a different option for people.

"We do things a little differently. We focus more on our bakery products," he said. All of them are made on-site.

"We pride ourselves on great customer service," he said.

Since the company is based in the Merrimack Valley, the logical move was to shift south.

"We're always looking for new spots," he said. Originally, they had remained close to Methuen.

He said that his father, who is an immigrant from Greece, founded the original location in 1975. He noted that it has remained there for over thirty years.

They then began to slowly expand.

"We opened up a couple more stores," he said.

Franchising has gone well, he said. It has aided their goal of maintaining their business model.

"It has honestly been a lot of hard work and dedication—overnights, working days at a time, and making things happen," he said.

He said that they offer a "good product" at a "good price," and they see no reason to change.

"It's been working so far," he said. "So, we're going to keep doing it."

Other locations include North Reading, Lawrence, Amesbury, and Haverhill.

Heavn'ly Donuts is not the only new doughnut store to open in Wilmington.

Recently, The Donut Shop moved into the former Dunkin' Donuts location in North Wilmington.

Wilmington resident at PMC

Laing cycling for a great cause

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Considering he is preparing for his fourth consecutive Pan Mass Challenge this weekend, you might find it hard to believe that Wilmington resident David Laing Jr. does not consider himself to be an avid bike rider.

You are unlikely to find Laing constantly riding his bike through the streets of Wilmington, but every August you can be sure you will find him at the Pan Mass Challenge starting line, eager to do his part to raise money in the battle against cancer.

That's because competing in the Challenge is more than just a bike race to the 32-year-old Laing, who grew up in Woburn and has lived in Wilmington since 2005.

"No, I wouldn't consider myself an avid bike rider," Laing said. "But my buddy and I decided back in 2008 to get involved with the Pan Mass Challenge and we are very glad that we did. We started doing it just because it is for a great cause and we have both been touched by cancer in our lives."

Laing lost both of his grandmothers to cancer, one when he was only nine months old, and the other when he was 16, and his grandfather on his father's side has been battling skin cancer for the past five years.

Laing has certainly done his part to help his family, not to mention thousands of other families, having raised $3,000 in each of the last three years, while he is closing in on that goal this year, having raised $2,745 so far this year.

"It's fantastic to be able to help out," Laing said. "It goes to a great cause, and we are just trying to benefit everyone in need that we can."

Riding alongside Laing, who will compete in the 84 mile route from Wellesley to Bourne, will be his best friend Kevin Barile of Tewksbury as well as his brother in law Jim Ferguson and Kevin's sister in law Jesse Anderson. All three have had cancer touch their lives, particularly Kevin, who lost great grandfather, as well as both of his grandfathers and an uncle to the disease, while his mother is a cancer survivor.

Having this type of support group has certainly helped Laing to stay focused on his goal. And it also makes for a great day during the race. Barile is also in his fourth year of the Pan Mass Challenge, while Ferguson and Anderson are preparing for their first race.

"It is fantastic. Just to have so many friends around, and this year to have two new riders with us is great," Laing said. "I think they feel the same way

Tewksbury resident to participate in PMC

Brown gearing up for another ride

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

It goes without saying that all of the riders who participate in this weekend's Pan Mass Challenge are very committed to their cause. After all, they have all made the choice to ride anywhere from 50 to 184 miles to raise money for cancer research, very often in honor of a family member or friend who had battled, or is in the midst of a battle with cancer.

But it would probably be safe to say that Tewksbury resident Gary Brown went above and beyond the call of duty in last year's race, as he overcame a collision early in his 170 mile two day trek from Wellesley to Provincetown and went on to complete the race.

"The race starts at 7:00 a.m. on Saturday and I had the collision and broke two ribs at about noon time," Brown said. "That certainly made things a little more challenging, but it was well worth it. It is for such a great cause."

Brown certainly was not discouraged by his collision as he is back again this year, once again competing in the 170-mile challenge.

Like many people who are participating in this weekend's Pan Mass Challenge, Brown has seen his life touched by cancer. In Brown's case it was not himself or a family member that was affected by the disease, but rather two other families who are very important parts of his life.

Brown was drawn to compete in the race for the first time last year, competing in memory of the mother of one of the players on the youth hockey team that

Brown coaches, a 40-year-old non-smoker who succumbed to lung cancer.

"Last year I rode for the mom of one of the boys I coached in hockey who had died of lung cancer," Brown said. "I rode for her family and for her son. When I saw the look on the face of the eight year boy at his mother's funeral, I just knew I had to get involved. It was something I will never forget."

This year Brown is taking to the streets again for another family near and dear to his own family's heart. He will be competing in honor of Kim D'Orlando, the wife of his close friend Billy D'Orlando, who was diagnosed with breast cancer last October.

Kim and Billy have two young daughters, and the 48-year-old Brown, who has three children his own, was eager to help in any way he could.

Brown will not be alone in his efforts, as he will be joined by both Bill D'Orlando and Butch Cutone who will compete under the name "Kwik Spinners Team" named in honor of Kwik Auto Supply, an automotive paint supply store in Medford and Randolph owned by Brown, where D'Orlando has worked with him for the past 25 years.

"It definitely helps to be riding with them and to be training with them because they are both so personally invested in it," Brown said. "Butch lost both of his in-laws to cancer so this has very special meaning to all of us."

The trio will also certainly be inspired by the spectators along the route of the race.

"There is great support both days," Brown said. "On Saturday there are a lot of people out there, but on Sunday there are even more people out all along the route cheering us on. That definitely helps keep you going."

There is plenty of reason to cheer on Brown and his teammates, as Brown himself has already raised $5,667 this year, exceeding his goal of $5,000, raising the money primarily through a golf event for his customers as well as donations by friends and family members.

Team Kwik Spinners has raised over $16,000 combined, exceeding even last year's great total of nearly $15,000.

"We are proud to have raised that much money this year," Brown said. "Like I said it is for a great cause. Cancer is something that affects so many people. It seems like everyone knows somebody who has been touched by it. Anything we can do to help is a pleasure for us."

Tewksbury 11-Year-Old Nationals

Magical ride comes to an end

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

MEDFORD -- For the third time in the summer tournament, the Tewksbury 11-year-old National All-Star Baseball team found themselves in a hole, trailing early on. The previous two times, Tewksbury rallied back and held on for the victory, and last Wednesday, the incredible come-from-behind performance happened again, as the Nationals led 4-2 but Medford was able to stage its own comeback scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth to pull out the very exciting 6-4 victory in the state semi-final game.

The loss ended the tremendous run by the entire Tewksbury team, which went 6-2 in District play, including winning the District 14 title, before taking two-out-of-three from Wakefield to win the Sectional 4 title, which put them into the state semifinals against Medford. Tewksbury finished the entire tournament with a record of 8-4.

"Getting this far is just huge," said manager Wayne Freitag. "I've been coaching a lot of years, I've had some good district runs, but going this far with this team, especially with the hearts they have is just so special. No one gave us a shot. Every team we talked to said 'you're still in it, wow'. No one gave us a shot and the kids just battled everytime they came out to the field. They left their blood, sweat and tears on the field every single time they were out there."

Tewksbury had a very daunting task in this battle against Medford - trying to take on a very talented team, led by two Jolly-the-Green-Giants, pitcher Aidan Park and first baseman Gino DeSimone, who both easily stood at 5-foot-9 inches tall. Park was very dominating early as he struck out five of the first six batters he faced, as only one batter through the first nine made contact.

Meanwhile, DeSimone belted a two-run homer in the bottom of the first as Medford jumped out to a 2-0 lead.

The score stayed that way in the bottom of the second thanks to some great defense, which Tewksbury displayed throughout the entire game. After Medford's Colin DeAngelis led off the inning with a double, the next batter Patrick Bradley-Cooney hit a sharp grounder to third, where Riley Frost went to his left and made a great stop in the hole to prevent a run. Bradley-Cooney did advance to third on the play, but was held there after pitcher Matt Perron dug deep and got the two next batters on ground-outs.

Tewksbury then went to work in the top of the third. After Park struck out the first batter, Danny Adelsberger worked a walk. After another strike out, Cam Legvold singled to right sending Adelsberger to second. Perron followed and he belted a gap shot that bounced to the left center fence scoring both runners to tie the game up at 2-2. Dominic Jolly kept the rally going as he sent a ball past the first base line into right field for a RBI double to help Tewksbury take a 3-2 lead. Pinch runner Jack Kelly was stranded at second.

"Yeah I'm very proud (of that rally)," said Freitag. "They got started with (Park) and I told the boys before the game that (Medford) had their number one pitcher going and we have our number one pitcher going, and we're going to have to battle and see which team can knock the pitcher out first. (The Tewksbury) kids did their job. They worked and worked (Park) and they pecked away at him, got a couple of hits in there and pushed across some runs."

Tewksbury again was able to hold off a rally by Medford thanks to some terrific defense. With a runner at third and two outs, Park sent a hard shot in the hole and shortstop Cam Legvold showed off his range and made a great play before throwing a dart to first baseman Travis MacMurdo for the third out of the inning, keeping it a one-run ballgame.

In the top of the fifth, Tewksbury extended its lead to two. With one out and the bases empty, Colby Wilson walked and advanced to third on a two-base error off the bat of Legvold. Perron then delivered his third RBI of the game with a sacrifice fly to score Wilson.

In the home half of the fifth, Medford was able to score four runs behind three singles and another home run off the bat of DeSimone, before the inning ended with another strong defensive play by Papa at second base.

"That was the team," said Freitag. "We struggled a bit defensively out in Gloucester but the kids came alive today and the defense was just tremendous."

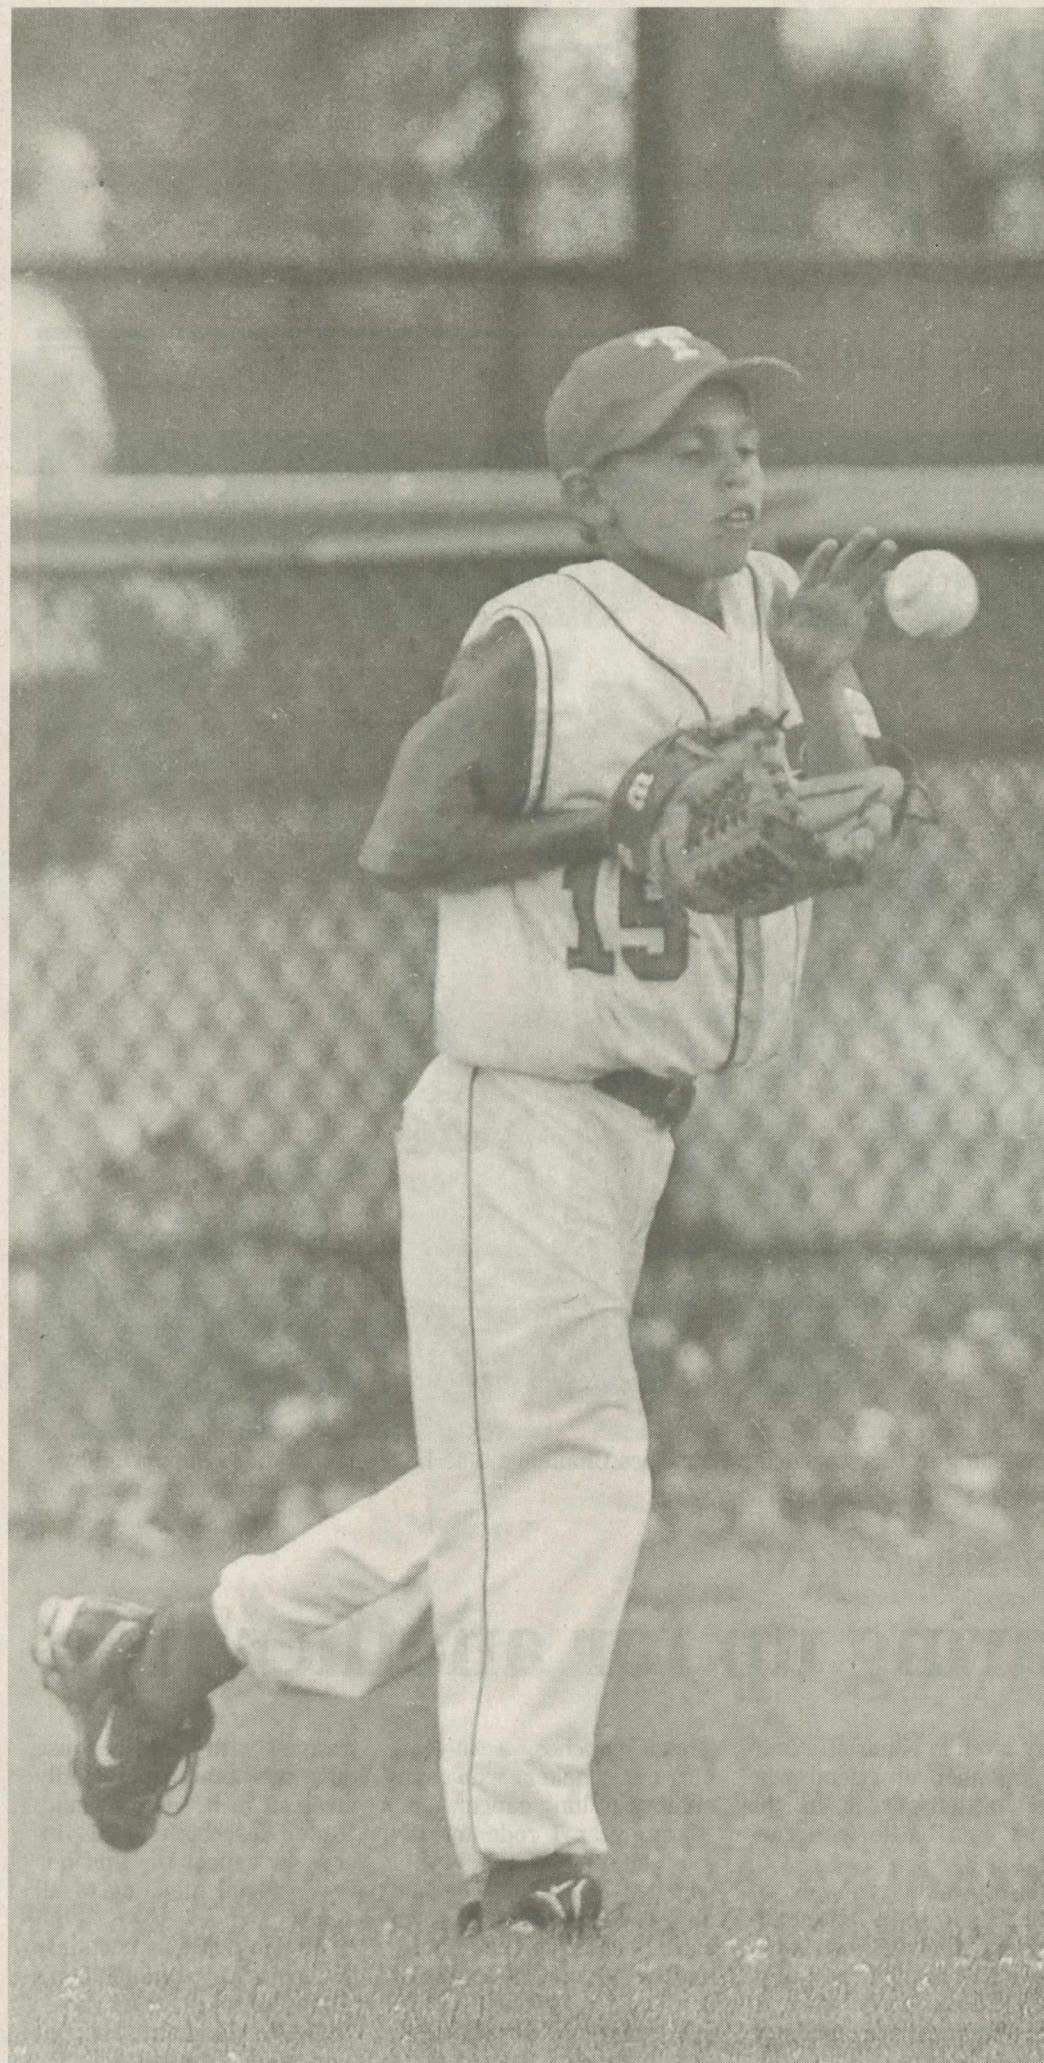

Also putting in strong defensive efforts included left fielders Will Timmons and Zach Weitz and right fielder Troy Acconcia.

As well as the defense played behind him, Parron was sensational in this game. With the 85-pitch limit, he really maximized his control, throwing just 45 pitches through the first four innings. He didn't walk a batter throughout the entire game, and Tewksbury didn't make a single error behind him. He also mixed up his pitches very well, including striking out three batters over five innings of work.

"Matty was terrific," said Freitag. "His is the smallest kid on the field and that kid has the biggest heart. He think he made two mistakes to that batter, and I told him those aren't mistakes. You have to pitch the ball, he has to hit the ball. He made the swing, you made the pitch. It's not a mistake. He got you this time, the next time you'll get him."

Relief pitcher Michael O'Brien was able to retire the side in order in the sixth and Tewksbury walked off the field as District Champions, and coming two wins away from capturing a state championship - an amazing accomplishment.

"We really did battle," said Freitag, who was assisted by Nathan Legvold and Steve Powers. "It was unbelievable, it really was. I'm very, very proud of the boys. We were the smallest team every time we stepped out on the field, but they got the biggest hearts. They played a great game, and that was a great game."

Center fielder Colby Wilson comes in to make a play for the Tewksbury 11-year-old National All-Star Baseball team in their game played last Wednesday night in Medford. The home team, Medford came away with a 6-4 win ending Tewksbury's terrific tournament run.

Fourth Annual Lauren Ciampa Memorial Clinic

Field Hockey Camp to feature many local kids

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

ANDOVER -- Fans of Wilmington High Field Hockey will likely still remember Maureen Noone as the former coach of the Wildcats who led her team to several successful seasons, while current fans of Andover High Field Hockey know her as the coach of the two-time defending Division 1 State Champions.

But more important than either of those positions is the position that Noone will hold next week, when she, along with many volunteers will host the Fourth Annual Lauren Ciampa Memorial Field Hockey Clinic at Lovely Field in Andover.

On August 6th and 7th, Noone, her assistants and both present and former players will host the clinic in memory of one of their teammates, Lauren Ciampa. The clinic, for girls grades 4-12, pays tribute to Ciampa, who died May 13, 2009, at age 21, after a battle with sarcoma.

Ciampa was a graduate of Andover High School and a field hockey player under Noone. Lauren lost her battle to cancer and now in its fourth year, this memorial clinic has hosted over 100 girls each year from Andover and surrounding towns, with many of the participants coming from Tewksbury and Wilmington. All of the proceeds from the clinic go directly to the Jimmy Fund at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. The Clinic is open to girl's grades 4-12, and takes place at Andover High School from 8am to 12pm Monday and Tuesday. The girls enjoy two hours of dedicated skills and training and two hours of scrimmage. Players must come with a stick, mouth guard, shin guards and water.

Noone, who has helped run the clinic since its first year in 2009, has been proud of the way it has grown over the past three years and is looking forward to an even bigger turnout next week.

"It has been really nice because it is for a great cause," Noone said. "We are able to generate some money for the Jimmy Fund which is always nice. It is also great because even though it is in Andover we have a lot of kids from other communities come to the clinic and they get to know each other."

"We always get great support from Wilmington and Tewksbury and even some other communities."

The clinic has grown from its initial days where it featured only Andover High players and coaches, those who were most affected by Lauren's passing. Lauren lost her battle with cancer in May of 2009, yet Noone and others still managed to pull together the first annual clinic in August of the same year.

While Noone was at the head of the group doing the organizing of that first clinic, she is quick to give credit to all the others involved.

"It wasn't just me, there were a lot of kids who helped out a lot," Noone said. "The kids were just devastated, just like we all were and they wanted to do something to help her family. This is something we all could do."

And while the memory of Lauren Ciampa and her courageous battle with cancer is never far from the thoughts of the camps organizers as well as many of the attendees, the main goal of the clinic, along with raising money for Dana Farber, is to provide a great way for young players to learn the game of field hockey while having a fun and exciting time.

"We have kids as young as fourth grade come to the clinic and they leave saying it was the highlight of their summer," Noone said. "And the two half days is just enough, especially for the younger kids. The kids get a taste of what field hockey is like and can decide if they like it and most of them do and want to continue playing."

Noone feels that one of the biggest reasons for the clinic's success has been the efforts of her volunteers, mostly players and former players from Andover High. Without their support, Noone knows there would be no clinic.

"They are really good kids. They are good athletes, but more importantly they are really good kids," Noone said. "Some of the kids who are coaching now did not know Lauren or her family, but they are still so willing to help and they do a great job."

Former Andover High School Field Hockey player Lauren Ciampa passed away at the age of 21 after battling sarcoma. The program's head coach, Maureen Noone, the former Wilmington High School head coach, with the help of Ciampa's Family, has organized a Field Hockey Clinic in honor of Lauren. This will be the fourth year of the camp, which is open to Wilmington and Tewksbury residents and will begin on August 6th. (courtesy photo).

One of the volunteer coaches this year will be someone who did not know Lauren Ciampa at all. Cristina Wilson, a three-sport star at Wilmington High, and former participant in the clinic will be joining the staff as a coach and Noone could not be happier to have her.

"I got to know Cristina from the camp and she seems like such a great kid," Noone said. "She wrote me a thank you note after the clinic and she asked if there was any way she could help so this year she will be coaching with us. We are so excited to have here. She is a great athlete and a great kid."

If you would like your child to join Noone, Wilson and the rest of the staff for a great time to help out a great cause, registration for the clinic can be completed on-line at <http://lcclinic.info> or the registration form can be mailed to M. Noone at 5 Dodge Road, Rowley, Ma. 01969.

You must include your name, address, city state and zip code, date of birth, grade, position you play or would like to play and email address. You must also fill out the registration medical questions and sign the Released Statement form. You will not be allowed to play without the completed form signed and dated.

You may also register on Monday August 6, on the first day of the clinic, at Andover High School.

The registration fee is $60.00 and checks should be made out to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute/Jimmy Fund in Memory of Lauren Ciampa. Over the years this field hockey clinic has raised thousands of dollars for the Dana Farber Jimmy Fund Clinic.

that I do, that we are doing this for a great cause and also to have some fun. We are very excited about it."

Along with his fellow riders, Laing will get draw plenty of motivation from the memory of his maternal grandmother Catherine, who passed away when Laing was 16 years old. She had a profound affect on his life while she was living and she continues to inspire him to this day.

"She was fantastic," Laing said. "We lived with her and she was just great to be around. Everybody loved her. She was very much involved with the church and with her community and was just so great. We all miss her."

If Laing needs any further motivation than that, he knows he will get it from the large crowds all along the 84 mile route cheering on all of the riders.

"It is just incredible to see all of the people. You get a huge adrenaline high seeing them all out there," Laing said. "It is 7:00 in the morning and there are already people out there with their coffee saying thank you, and people with signs saying they are a survivor. It is an amazing feeling."

"It makes you feel good to know you are able to help out, and that is where the adrenaline boost comes from. We want to help in any way we can, so being able to do this feels great for all of us."

Wildcats' bats go quiet against Medford

Medford 10, Wilmington 0

In their first meeting earlier this summer, the Medford Fusion held the Wilmington Under 18-Softball team to one hit. Last week, at Columbus Park in Medford, it was almost a replay as the Medford pitchers combined to throw a two-hit, 10-0 victory. Defense, again, was also a problem for the Wildcats as they committed five errors, leading to six unearned runs.

Wilmington only had four base runners the whole night and one was thrown out attempting to steal second base. Jackie Kennedy had a single in the first inning and Alliy Gemellaro had one in the fourth. Kennedy Harper and Rachel Mills both reached on base-on-balls. Medford played a strong defensive game and when Wilmington did hit the ball, the Fusion made the plays.

Defensively for the Wildcats, Danielle Reynolds played a great game at thirdbase, grabbing a scorching line shot in the 2nd inning and making several good plays through the game. In the first inning, with the bases loaded, Reynolds fielded a tough grounder and fired home to catcher Kennedy Harper, who kept her foot on the plate while falling away for the force out.

Although the score may not indicate it, pitcher Casey MacDonald deserved a better fate. MacDonald went the distance and got out of several jams, stranding eight Medford base runners.

Billerica 14, Wilmington 4

Wilmington had hoped to rebound in a game at the West Field against the Billerica Bratz. Unfortunately for the Wildcats, the bats remained silent and they struggled to get any kind of offense going until the final inning. Pitching problems plagued the Wildcats after the first inning and they used three different pitchers throughout the game, shortened by darkness.

The shorthanded Wildcats started the game with only two outfielders. Sure enough, Billerica's leadoff batter in the 2nd inning ripped a triple to the wide gap and scored on the next play. Defensively for Wilmington, catcher Michaela Ouellette threw out a Billerica base runner attempting to steal second in the first inning.

In the fourth inning, with runners on first and second, shortstop Jackie Kennedy fielded a grounder, tagged the lead runner and threw to Katherine McKenna at first for the double play. Kim Woods had two good catches in centerfield.

Although only getting two hits in the first four innings, the Wildcats did get on the board in the final inning, scoring all four of their runs. Woods led off with a single to center. With one out, Kennedy drove her home with her second hit of the game. McKenna's single moved Kennedy to third. Alliy Gemellaro then drove in both runners and scored herself on a passed ball.

The only other Wilmington hit was a double by Heather Benson in the second inning. Danielle Reynolds laid down a nice sacrifice bunt in the second and also walked and had stolen base.

Wilmington will play their final home game Monday against the Medford Mustangs and then travel to Georgetown on Thursday to face the 8-1 East Coast Thunder. On Friday the Wildcats begin pool play in the Tanner Pride Softball Tournament, taking place in Woburn. Many top New England teams will be taking part in the tournament and Wilmington looks to gain some experience playing against high caliber teams and have a fun weekend.

Gearing up for annual road race

The annual Wilmington Half Marathon/5K Road Race will take place on September 23rd. Dan Vassallo will be writing articles each week in the Town Crier to promote the event.

As you may have read in several previous editions of the Town Crier, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will be putting on its annual Wilmington Half Marathon and 5K on Sunday, September 23rd at 10:10 AM at the WCTV headquarters on Waltham Avenue.

As the winner of the 2008 half-marathon, the course record holder, and as someone who has served on the race staff over the past three years, I am really proud of what Nancy Vallee, Tom Pazyra, and countless other members of the Wilmington community have accomplished to make this truly one of the premier road races in the area and one of the annual occasions our community has welcomed into its schedule.

Five reasons the road race is one of my favorite events on the calendar:

* There is now a 5K option. While I still prefer the half-marathon, almost anyone can run a 5K. You can train for only a few weeks to run a fast 5K, and by reading these pages in the next week, I will provide a training plan so that you can run a faster 5K on September 23rd.

* The course. In late September, it is picturesque, shaded, and fast. The hills in the sixth mile of the half and the first mile of the 5K are challenging, but they reward you on the way back down. I have had friends run very fast times on the Wilmington course.

* The cost. Other marathons may provide extra frills, but at $25 for the half-marathon, it is literally the lowest-cost half-marathon I've ever come across. While there are no foil blankets, or permits to close major thoroughfares, Wilmington passes their cost savings to the runners. All proceeds go to deserving Wilmington students going to college. I'd rather help a kid go to college than have another finisher's medal sit in a closet at my parents' house.

* The amenities. Wilmington provides everything you can ask for in a road race: Professional timing, prizes for age-group winners, post-race refreshments, and music. Local businesses also support the race by setting up booths lining Waltham Avenue, and they always have something exciting to offer.

* The community. Even before working for the committee, I convinced some of my friends to run in Wilmington because I want to show off my hometown. I'm glad the town of Wilmington, its public officials, its school groups, and fans lining the course have supported the race.

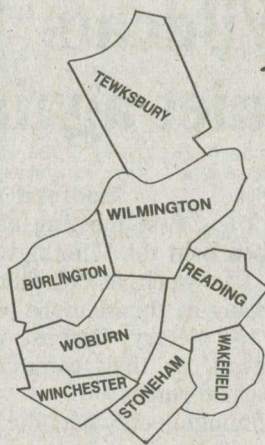

Now I hope its athletes will do the same thing by coming out to the starting line on September 23rd.

K of C Wiffleball Tournament, Sept. 15

Knights of Columbus Father Edmund Croke Council is pleased to announce that the annual Wiffle Ball Tournament is returning to Wilmington.

The tournament will be held on Saturday, September 15th at 8am in the KofC members parking lot. Teams of four or five will compete in a double elimination tournament, with cash prizes going to the top 3 teams. The tournament will be capped at 16 teams. The cost of entering a team is $100. Food and refreshments will be available for purchase. This is a fast-pitch tournament, ages 18-plus.

If you have questions or are interested in entering a team, please contact Justin Strem (978) 270-0528 justin.strem@gmail.com

-Foster Parents needed Woburn residents recognized as Foster Parents of the Year

By RYAN LAROCHE

Woburn resident Karen Manna and her husband, Michael, have had a lot of babies come in and out of their home. For many years they have opened their home and their hearts to foster children.

Both Karen and her husband have been serving as foster parents for close to 15 years. Unfortunately, they're among the few couples who volunteer their home and their love to children who, for whatever reason, have nowhere to go.

Karen said that only four families in Woburn provide foster care. That's four families out of roughly 38,000 residents. Sadly, it's not much better in other communities. She said that Burlington, Reading and Winchester each have two foster families. That makes for a total of 10 foster homes in four communities totaling close to 100,000 residents.

Karen's main goal, she said, was to get the word out and let people know help is needed. To be a foster family, she said, a person does not have to be married or in a relationship. Single people can be foster parents, too.

According to mass.gov, the only requirements to becoming a foster parent are that the prospective parent must be at least 18 years of age, own or rent a home that meets safety standards and have a stable source of income.

There are different types of foster care other than simply taking a child into the home for a certain number of weeks or months including hotline care and respite care. In hotline care the foster family keeps a child for no more than 48 hours (and the child can be dropped off at any time from 2 p.m. to as early/late as 2 a.m.). With respite care, the foster family cares for another families foster child(ren) when that family goes away. Regardless of how a prospective foster family chooses what type of care they give, the family has the ability to choose what kind of child(ren) wind(s) up in the home.

For instance, Karen said a person could ask to only take care of babies or to only take care of teenagers. She said that a person could request only children with blue eyes or only children of a certain race. It should be noted that mass.gov lists certain types of children as especially in need of foster care. They are:

- Older children and teenagers

- Children with special needs (educational, developmental, or emotional)

- Medically involved children

- Drug-affected infants

- Sibling groups

- Linguistic and ethnic minorities

To become a foster parent, one must complete six months of training for certification. The most extensive training is called MAPP (Massachusetts Approach to Partnership in Parenting). The training is designed to help families understand the difficulty children in foster care face. It also helps families understand how foster parenting will affect their own family.

In most cases, foster children are either reunited with a member of their birth family or given to adoptive parents. Foster children routinely stay in a foster home for three to eighteen months.

In certain circumstances foster parents may call and have family services remove a child and transport him or her to another family.

In the past, families could keep children for up to two and a half years, but a law passed recently capping the limit to 18 months.

For Karen, her family shrunk somewhat when her grown children moved out of the house. It then grew again when she adopted two girls, ages 10 and 8, for which she had previously cared.

When Karen saw her first daughter, she simply said, "we want her." Adopting the second daughter went about the same way (she was available once she couldn't be reunited with her birth family). Both children came into the home young: the first daughter came at six months old and the second daughter at four-years old.

Karen does both long-term care and hotline care. She currently has a nine-month old in her life who she said would stay for a couple more months. There is hope he may be reunited with his birth father who Karen said didn't even know he existed.

"It's hard to give them up," she said, referring to that time when the child must leave the home to either be reunited with a family member or given to adoptive parents.

Karen pointed out that if she were 10 years younger she'd adopt more. As it is, she remarked she'd already be old enough when her two adopted daughters graduate from Woburn High School.

Unfortunately, "all come with baggage," Karen said about children in foster care. Due to the circumstances, many are left with behavioral and medical issues.

"You can't heal all of those (medical, behavioral) issues," Karen remarked.

When asked why she became a foster parent, she said, "We chose to do this. Anyone can do this. We all have a choice. These kids do not. We can advocate for them."

There's no right time to become a foster family. Parents to S-4

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"THE WATCH" FALLS FLAT

"THE WATCH" IS A WASTE OF A GREAT CAST. Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn, Jonah Hill and Richard Ayoade are good comic talents but can't save this mediocre sci-fi comedy that centers around the story of a Neighborhood Watch patrol.

"THE WATCH"
GRADE: **

The idea behind the new film "The Watch" seems like a formula for a hit - a bunch of talented comic leads get together to make a high-concept, science fiction comedy hit for the studio. Instead, it falls a bit flat.

"The Watch" is a waste of a great cast. How often do you see a trio with the comedic talents of Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn and Jonah Hill show up in the same film. Those three should have no problem overcoming the hurdle of a weak script, yet the improvising they do together seems to go to the body-part joke well a bit too often, and it quickly gets boring.

This mediocre sci-fi comedy centers around the story of a Neighborhood Watch patrol that ultimately takes on alien invaders.

It's a shame that it doesn't work, because the premise has potential, especially for anyone who was a fan of R-rated sci-fi action-comedies in the 1980s.

A manager at a suburban Ohio Costco (Stiller) tries to put together a Neighborhood Watch after one of his security guards is killed and skinned. The community-policing recruits are thin: an idiot who just wants to party (Vaughn), a failed cop wannabe (Hill, riffing on his recent performance in '21 Jump Street') and a Brit whose politeness masks deadpan weirdness (Richard Ayoade).

They go on patrol (ineptly, in matching jackets with a dumb logo). They're mocked by the local cops. And, wait a minute, they uncover plans for an alien invasion of Earth that they're not-quite-ready to stop.

Costco takes a lot of abuse in the film, leading to scenes of product placement mixed with explosions that still aren't all that funny.

"The Watch" appears to be largely improvised, particularly by Vaughn and Hill. Some of this works, but some of it really doesn't work well at all.

There are several dramatic subplots as well: Stiller's afraid to tell his wife (Rosemarie DeWitt) why they can't get pregnant. Vaughn overanalyzes his daughter's Facebook page and yells at her and crashes her teen parties.

There are some funny moments, but mostly there's a great sense of wasted talent.

"THE DARK KNIGHT RISES"
GRADE: ***

"The Dark Knight Rises" isn't a bad movie. Not at all. In fact, if it could stand alone, it would be considered one of the better superhero movies to come along in years.

The problem is it has to follow "The Dark Knight", the second film in director Christopher Nolan's Batman trilogy - and a film that is considered by many to be THE best superhero movie ever made. The new film fails to stand up, or stand out, from the long bat-caped shadow projected by its predecessor.

It has been eight years since Batman vanished into the night at the end of "The Dark Knight", turning, in that instant, from hero to fugitive. Assuming the blame for the death of D.A. Harvey Dent, the Dark Knight (Christian Bale) sacrificed everything for what he and Commissioner Gordon both hoped was the greater good.

For a time the lie worked, as criminal activity in Gotham City was crushed under the weight of the anti-crime Dent Act. But everything has now changed with the arrival of a cunning cat burglar with a mysterious agenda, and the more dangerous Bane, a masked terrorist whose ruthless plans for Gotham drive Bruce Wayne out of his self-imposed exile. But even after he dons the cape and cowl again, Batman looks like he's no match for Bane.

"The Dark Knight Rises" is the third film in Nolan's series. Fans have been concerned for months that, as with some other movie franchises (the "Alien" saga, for example, or the third in the "Spider-Man" series), the third film might not hold up against the standard of its predecessors.

The worries were, in part, warranted.

As stated above this "Knight" conquers, in its depth, in its character development and in its dark, somber tone. Eight years after the second film, Bruce Wayne is portrayed as a pensive, sorrowful hermit, tended to by his loyal butler Alfred (Michael Caine), who comforts him as Wayne mourns the loss of his true love from years ago. Wayne is older, both in body and in soul. He is not the man he used to be, and it's nearly impossible to see the Wayne who created Batman in this shell of his former self.

But Bane (Tom Hardy) is wreaking all kinds of havoc, and he has a particular agenda beyond the chaos he creates. Lucius Fox (Morgan Freeman) is once again on hand and on Batman's side, and young detective John Blake (Joseph Gordon-Levitt) also assists Batman in his quest to thwart Bane. The motives of cat burglar Selina Kyle (Anne Hathaway) are difficult to determine.

The action scenes are well-done, especially those in which Batman takes on Bane. (Of course Wayne dons the suit again. Was there any doubt?) Fans of the many vehicles depicted in the Batman comics will love the thunder of The Bat and its sibling mode of transportation, The Batcycle.

I won't spoil the end, but it ill packs a tremendous "Wow!" factor.

Maybe "The Dark Knight Rises" should be reviewed as a stand alone film. As such, it's very good. The problem is it is forever interconnected with two other movies, so it almost has to be compared to those films, and by doing so also compare its performances to them.

In this context, "The Dark Knight Rises" is a bit of a disappointment. It's a good movie, and compared to the dozens of comic book movies over the decades, it's a fine effort. But compared to its far superior predecessor, it's a bit of a letdown.

"The Avengers" is still my pick as the best superhero flick of 2012.

"TED"
GRADE: ***

If you want to laugh, see "Ted". It's one of the best, and funniest, comedies to come along in a long time.

There is no shame in wholeheartedly recommending this movie about a man's friendship with the teddy bear that miraculously came to life when he was a boy.

That's the basic plot behind "Ted," the feature-film debut of "Family Guy" mastermind Seth MacFarlane, in which young, friendless John Bennett (Mark Wahlberg) makes a Christmas wish that gives him a best friend for life. This walking, talking stuffed animal becomes a media sensation, but 27 years later, Ted (voiced by MacFarlane, doing a slight variation of "Family Guy's" Peter Griffin) has gone from trading quips with Johnny Carson on "The Tonight Show" to being the obnoxious roommate a 35-year-old John (Mark Wahlberg) just can't bring himself to get rid of, even though the bear's presence obviously is wearing on his relationship with Lori.

"Ted" has a sweet emotional core once you've burrowed through the R-rated humor, a real story of friendship - it just so happens that one of the characters is a stuffed animal.

The best joke is that everyone in the world is aware of Ted's existence, but because he's old news, they don't care anymore. He's just another washed-up celebrity.

Ultimately, he has a good heart, and nearly everything that comes out of his fuzzy little mouth is pure comedic gold.

IN THE SWIM, INTO AUGUST (WINCHESTER)

Note: "AECOM is a global provider of professional technical and management support services to a broad range of markets, including transportation, facilities, environmental, energy, water and government."

"Due to not receiving new information, the Conservation Commission continued its hearing on the Stop & Shop gas station, proposed to be constructed at 671 Main St., until August 14, following which it continued its hearing on the Center Falls Dam to the same date in order to receive revised plans," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"While in the former instance, the continuation was voted without discussion, in the case of the latter project, the commission engaged in some discussion with AECOM on how the plans are to be revised and bid.

"The project consists of the replacement of the second of two 30-inch gate valves and discharges located on either side of the Center Falls Dam with 5-foot by 5-foot butterfly gates and 4-foot by 6-foot discharge boxes. The first replacement was done in 2002.

"At the last commission meeting, discussion arose over whether a fish ladder could be incorporated into the design..."

"Jake San Antonio of AECOM said that he had talked with the Assistant Town Manager and Town Counsel, who are reportedly willing to fund the engineering part of the project revision. However, the construction funding is limited to the allocation voted by the Spring 2011 Town Meeting..."

"After discussing the alternatives and schedule with San Antonio, the commission agreed to his drawing two plans, one similar to the original plans but with modifications to allow the future construction of a fish ladder and a second with a full fish ladder included. Contractors could bid on either option..."

"In the end, Commission Chairman Jim Whitehead told San Antonio that if he could get them the new drawings by August 10, they could vote on August 14. This, he suggested, should not cause serious delay since they can not go out to bid until the new drawings are done. The commission voted to continue the hearing until 8 p.m. on August 14, to follow the Stop & Shop hearing scheduled for 7:45 p.m."

RED SHIRT INITIATIVE (WILMINGTON/

TEWKSBURY)

"Firefighters in town sported sharp red polo shirts ... as they join the Red Shirt Fridays movement supporting veterans and active duty soldiers," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"The new uniforms, designed by Fred Ryan, came as part of a union initiative to simultaneously offer an outward sign of support while also raising funds for Local Heroes."

"The Crier visited the Public Safety Building on a busy Friday morning, bringing a donation from Donna's Donuts, to talk about the initiative and its importance while the shift washed the equipment, responded both to medical calls and even a structure fire."

"Fire Department Union President William Cavanaugh, a Navy veteran himself, told the Crier, 'We're trying to give back to the community more with Local Heroes, honoring the vets in our community.'..."

"Local Heroes has a golf tournament coming up August 6"

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: ?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•A total of 240 Stonehill College student-athletes have been named to the Northeast-10 Conference Commissioner's Honor Roll for their performances in the classroom during the spring semester.

All 19 of Stonehill's NE-10 varsity programs are represented on this semester's list, recognizing student-athletes who earned a grade point average of 3.0 or better during the spring term.

Stonehill's 240 honor roll members trail just Bentley University's 351 among all Northeast-10 programs. 58% of Stonehill's 411 student-athletes earned honor roll status, well above the Conference average of 50%. The Skyhawks field hockey team, which earned an NE-10 Academic Team Excellence award this year, led the NE-10 with 16 honor roll members.

Stonehill earned its third-straight NE-10 President's Cup Trophy for the 2011-12 academic year and fourth overall in program history. Stonehill has also been recognized for its efforts in the classroom with an inaugural Presidents' Award for Academic Excellence for having one of the top graduation rates in Division II. Stonehill is also ranked second in the National Collegiate Scouting Association (NCSA) Power Rankings used to assess the academic and athletic standards of all NCAA and NAIA athletic programs for the second-straight year.

The nine selections give Stonehill 30 Academic All-Northeast-10 selections for the academic year.

Frost is the first student-athlete from the Stonehill women's tennis program to earn Sport Excellence Award honors from the Northeast-10. She is the fourth Stonehill student-athlete this year and the ninth in school history since the award was established in 2009 to earn the award. Joining Frost as Sport Excellence Award recipients this year are seniors Maura Ferrarini (Springfield, Mass./Springfield Cathedral) and Stephen Polito (Worcester, Mass./Doherty Memorial) from the men's and women's cross country teams as well as ice hockey junior Dana Borges (Taunton, Mass./Coyle & Cassidy). Ferrarini and Polito, who also earned Academic All-Northeast-10 honors for both cross country and indoor track and field this year, join Frost as spring Academic All-Conference honorees as part of the outdoor track & field teams.

Stonehill's remaining Academic All-Conference honorees from the spring season are JUNIOR CAROLINE MCBRIDE (NORTH READING, MASS./NORTH READING) and sophomore Elizabeth LaRegina (New Fairfield, Conn./New Fairfield) for women's outdoor track & field, junior Kevin McCann (Monroe, Conn./Masuk) for men's outdoor track & field, junior Chris Martin (Darien, Conn./Darien) and sophomore Nick Hyzak (Guilford, Conn./Guilford) from the men's tennis team and junior Kayla Green (Londonderry, N.H./Londonderry) from the women's lacrosse team.

McBride earns her second career Academic All-Conference selection, both in track and field, after compiling a 3.57 cumulative grade point average as an American History major with a minor in journalism at Stonehill. McBride built off of her success during the indoor season by capturing first place honors in the 10,000-meter run at the NE-10 Outdoor Championships for the second-straight season with a meet record time of 38:29.88.

A U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCCA) All-East Region selection in the 5000-meter and 10,000-meter runs this season, McBride earned All-New England honors at the 2012 New England Championships placing second overall in a school record time of 37:31.77. McBride shattered her previous school record of 37:40.01 which she set at the Skyhawk Invitational on April 14 earlier in the season. McBride has been named a USTFCCCA All-East Region selection six times in her career collecting four honors in the 5000-meter run and two for 10,000-meters.

McBride also earned Capital One Academic All-District I honors this spring and has collected multiple NE-10 Commissioner's and Athletic Director's Honor Roll selections.

•Need some help with the trivia question?

•University of New Hampshire student-athletes Megan Bozek (Cortlandt Manor, N.Y.), Kellie Joyce (South Pomfret, Vt.), Casey Pohlmeier (Millersville, Md.), CARLIE TARBELL (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) and Melyssa Woods (Glens Falls N.Y.) were all selected to a regional High Performance Team and will compete at the Women's National Championships, held at the University of Maryland.

USA Field Hockey's High Performance Training Centers identify and train potential National Team athletes through comprehensive training and skill enhancement sessions as well as premier level competitions. They allow athletes to train in regional areas close to home with some of the country's top coaches. Trials are open to enrolled collegiate athletes and post-collegiate athletes identified by USA Field Hockey.

Bozek and Tarbell will compete for the North High Performance Tournament Team - which encompasses Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York - while Joyce, Pohlmeier and Woods were named to the Boston WNC Team.

Bozek started all 22 games as a sophomore back for UNH in 2011 and tallied five goals and one assist for 11 points as an integral part of the offensive penalty corner unit. She led the Wildcats in defensive saves with three and was also a prominent part of the Wildcats' defensive penalty corner unit. Her 2011 accolades included Longstreth/NFHCA Northeast Region Second Team, America East All-Conference Second Team and America East All-Academic Team. Bozek was named the recipient of the UNH field hockey program's Joyce V. Hiller Scholarship.

Tarbell played in six games with a 1-0 record during her freshman year for the 'Cats. She stopped 11 of 12 shots for a 0.39 GAA and .917 save percentage; in her only career start, Tarbell made five saves in a 2-1 victory at the University of Vermont. Tarbell was the recipient of The Freshman Award at UNH's annual team banquet.

Parents

from S-1

Younger couples may have more energy, but less money, while older couples who have the time and resources may not want to give up their freedom.

Karen took her first foster child in at 48-years old while one of her birth children was still at home. She said her children didn't understand at first why they took these babies in, but they helped out, anyway. As her children got older, she said, they became more comfortable sharing their parents with the foster children.

She's had so many kids, Karen said she could get to Boston Children's Hospital with her eyes closed.

Though it seems simple enough, Karen did recall one time when her family was contacted by her foster child's birth parents. In that situation, she said the proper protocol is to call the police and DCF (Department of Children and Families).

Thankfully, there are many "happily ever after" stories, as Karen put it, where children are returned to birth parents (or grandparents, uncles and aunts). And even those who don't get to go back to where they came from usually wind up with loving adoptive parents. That means foster families play the role of the "middle man" helping the story reach its happy conclusion.

Burlington cemetery project due to begin next month

BURLINGTON - The expansion of the Pine Haven Cemetery is expected to get under way next month, with completion set for late summer or early fall.

In May 2011, Town Meeting approved funding to expand the cemetery in an effort to address Burlington's burial space needs in the upcoming years. Through reconfiguration of the cemetery and the use of a variety of alternatives to traditional burials, the project is designed to meet the town's cemetery space needs for the next 20 years.

Alternative methods which will be available in the cemetery will include double-depth lawn crypts, in-ground cremains for the burial of ashes, and a columbarium, a structure which contains spaces for the placement of ashes.

Public Works Supt. John Sanchez said the contractor was awaiting delivery of the vaults which will be installed, but it is expected work will begin in August.

Though work should be completed by early fall, Sanchez explained that the new cemetery areas will not be used until 2013.

Town officials expect this project will resolve cemetery space issues which the town has been trying to address for a number of years.

Current policies do not allow for pre-sale of lots and a maximum of two lots are sold at any one time.

The town has conducted what Sanchez calls an "aggressive" campaign in buying back pre-sold lots from those who may want to sell them. Sanchez said the effort has been "somewhat successful."

The project carries a price tag of $1.2 million and increased cemetery fees are expected to help pay for the bond issue.

Healthy alternatives to potentially unhealthy ingredients

When trying to get healthy, men and women rightfully place great emphasis on diet and exercise. A healthy diet and routine exercise make a great team. Many people don't exactly jump for joy when adopting a healthy diet because they may feel the diet must be devoid of their favorite foods to prove effective.

But a healthy diet isn't necessarily one that lacks taste. In fact, changing a few ingredients is a great way to make some of your favorite dishes healthier while ensuring you still get to eat them. The following are a few ways to substitute healthy ingredients in some of your favorite recipes, courtesy of the American Heart Association.

- * Instead of whole milk, use fat-free or low-fat milk.
- * Replace heavy cream with evaporated skim milk or a combination of low-fat yogurt and plain low-fat unsalted cottage cheese.

- * Replace sour cream with low-fat unsalted cottage cheese or fat-free yogurt; fat-free sour cream is also a healthier choice than regular sour cream.

- * Swap cream cheese with soft margarine that is low in saturated fat and free of trans fats and blend the margarine with unsalted fat-free cottage cheese.

- * Use margarine that is low in saturated fats and free of trans fats when a recipe calls for butter.

- * Choose egg whites instead of regular eggs.

But healthy eating goes beyond ingredients. Many people find it difficult to avoid all of those delicious yet typically unhealthy snacks. But even snacks can be healthy and provide an energy boost throughout the day. All it takes is choosing the right snacks as opposed to those most readily available, which are often the most unhealthy.

- * Replace potato or corn chips with pretzels or reduced sodium low-fat potato chips.

- * Avoid high-fat cookies and crackers in favor of fat-free or low-fat options, including graham crackers, rice cakes, and fig or fruit bars.

- * Choose angel food cake over devil's food cake.

- * Replace ice cream bars on hot afternoons with frozen fruit bars.

- * When making pudding, make it with fat-free or low-fat milk instead of whole milk.

- * Opt for toast instead of a doughnut or bagel.

Fortunately, many restaurants have started informing customers about the ingredients in their offerings, and some establishments are even obligated by law to share calorie information with their customers. Still, the AHA notes that there are ways for customers to go one step further and make the meals they enjoy when dining out even healthier.

- * Replace cream-based soups with broths that boast lots of vegetables.

- * Request melba toast, pita bread or whole-grain rolls in lieu of bread, muffins or croissants.

Eggplant Dip Recipe

Mediterranean diet may help fight breast cancer

According to information published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, Greek postmenopausal women who rated highly in terms of researching scores in their consumption of foods that fit with a Mediterranean diet were 22 percent less likely to develop breast cancer during the study than others. Although the diet is not a cure-all for breast cancer, researchers estimate that if all women in their study population had closely adhered to a traditional Mediterranean diet, about 10 percent of the 127 postmenopausal breast cancers in the group would have been avoided.

It has long been believed that a Mediterranean diet has many positive effects on personal health. Although studies have only been conducted on breast cancer thus far, there is also hopeful evidence that the diet may reduce the risk for other cancers, including colon and stomach cancer, as well as reduce the chances for heart disease.

What Is a Mediterranean Diet?

A traditional Mediterranean diet is rich in seafood, heart-healthy fish, vegetables, whole grains, legumes, nuts, and olive oil. It is relatively low in dairy and red meat products. According to the Mayo Clinic, most if not all major scientific organizations encourage healthy adults to adopt a diet similar to the Mediterranean diet to prevent major chronic diseases.

Those who want to follow a Mediterranean diet can consider the following guidelines.

- * Base every meal on the consumption of fruits, vegetables, grains, olive oil, beans, nuts, legumes, seeds, herbs, and spices.

- * Consume fish and seafood often, at least two times per week.

- * Enjoy moderate portions of poultry, eggs, cheese, and yogurt daily to weekly.

- * Reduce and limit consumption of meats and sweets.

Experts say that if the Mediterranean diet does have a preventative nature toward breast cancer and other illnesses, it is likely due to the antioxidant components of the diet. The Mediterranean diet is rich in antioxidants, which protect cells from damage that may lead to diseases. The diet also helps to promote a healthy body weight, which is instrumental in keeping the body in top form and helping with immune system function.

To get started on the path of healthy Mediterranean eating, enjoy this recipe for Eggplant Dip.

EGGPLANT DIP

1 medium eggplant

2 tablespoons lemon juice

1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil

1/2 cup finely chopped red onion

1/4 cup plain Greek yogurt

1 small red bell pepper, finely chopped

1 small chile pepper, such as jalapeno, seeded and minced (optional)

2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil

1 tablespoon finely chopped flat-leaf parsley

1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste

1/4 teaspoon salt

Position oven rack about 6 inches from the heat source; preheat broiler.

Line a baking pan with foil. Place eggplant in the pan and poke a few holes all over it to vent steam. Broil the eggplant, turning with tongs every 5 minutes, until the skin is charred and a knife inserted into the dense flesh near the stem goes in easily, 14 to 18 minutes. Cool on a cutting board until ready to handle.

Put lemon juice in a medium bowl. Cut the eggplant in half lengthwise and scrape the flesh into the bowl, tossing with the lemon juice to help prevent discoloring. Add oil and stir with a fork until the oil is absorbed. (It should be a little chunky.) Stir in yogurt, onion, bell pepper, chile pepper (if using), basil, parsley, cayenne and salt.

If the eggplant has a lot of seeds it may be bitter. Add a dash of salt to sweeten the dip.

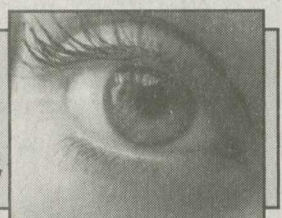

Serve with whole-wheat crackers, wedges of toasted pita, or fresh vegetable slices.

beautifully trimmed hardwood floors with an inlaid of walnut.

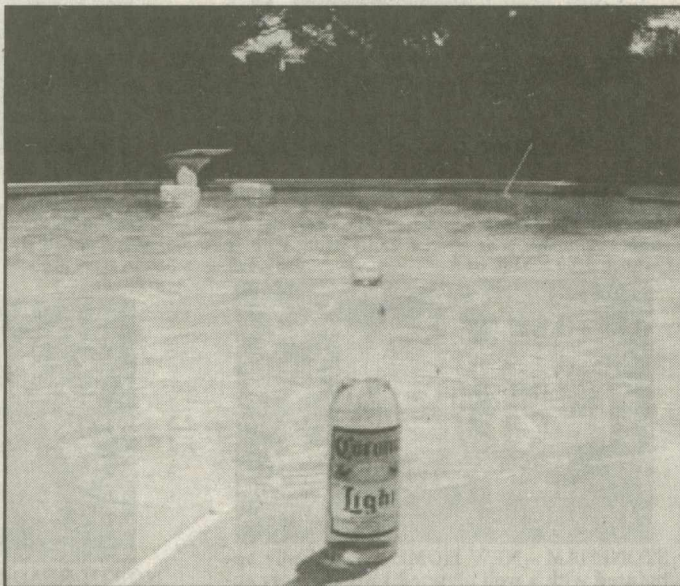

A formal parlor with an original marble mantle is for decorative purposes only. With 10' ceilings every room has the feel of spaciousness. The home has hardwood flooring throughout.

Leaving the front rooms, your immediate attention is drawn to the sheer size of the true gourmet kitchen with double wolf convection ovens, 6 burners, a griddle, grill and commercial vent system. The kitchen also features a bar sink, prep sink, and a kitchen sink. Two dishwashers help move the cleaning along. The center island seats 9 stools comfortable with a raised granite piece for an easy division of cooking and eating. A charming wall mural sets apart family dining in the kitchen nook.

During the total renovation the details of the era were not lost on the homeowner, employing the assistance of a period architect. The 25' family room and the rooms above it are an addition that enhances the appeal of the home. The family room features cathedral high ceilings, big bright windows, a gas fireplace and a full wall of French doors with a custom pediment. All of the woodwork has been hand stained in a deep rich mahogany. A mahogany two tier deck flows from the family room to a stoned patio and all leads to the in-ground gunite pool and surrounding landscape.

Attention to details prevailed as the original stairs were demolished and a more distinguished grand stairway was constructed. Leading to the 2nd floor, there is wainscoting and a perfect place for cherished family photos. The upstairs landing is large and offers twin access to the two front bedrooms.

There are 4 bedrooms on the 2nd floor, all with specific styled murals painted through the efforts of a local artist. Bedroom number one includes the features of two closets, two doorways and windows offering the advantages of cross ventilation. Bedroom number 2 offers a full walk in closet and close proximity to one of the two bathrooms. The laundry room is also on the 2nd floor.

Bedroom number three has two doors, and two distinct closets and features a princess mural. The bathrooms on this floor are exquisite, one with blue pearl marble, cherry vanity, blue pearl marble counter and a fully tiled tub area. The 2nd bath was designed with children in mind and features dragonfly tiles, frogs and all the charming critters one would expect. Brightly designed with a linen closet and white cabinetry.

The fourth bedroom on this floor is approximately 20' wide and features a 20' ante room with storage in the eaves. The window in the anteroom overlooks the beautiful grounds. This room at one time doubled as the couples gym and office. It could easily be divided into two or more rooms. An additional option for a different master bedroom or an au pair suite or even an in-law. With so much square footage your options are limitless.

The master suite is strategically located on the third floor offering a respite from the younger generation. It features a multitude of closet space, a full sized den or home office and a luxurious bath. The master bath is the most exquisite in the area with tumbled limestone, a 6 head steam shower and bench, a twin cherry vanity and granite counter. A relaxing whirlpool tub with the perfect combination of windows and limestone shelving.

The master sleeping area features two skylights and a birdseye view of the grounds. This truly magnificent home features an acre of land, a hydro air heating system, central air, central vacuum, two car garage, Bose whole house speaker system, an irrigation system and much more. For more information or to make a reservation to view it, please contact Priscilla Fitzgerald of Fitzgerald & Associates 978-664-4709 or email at scillafitz@gmail.com. This property at 42 Hopkins Street, Wakefield, is being offered at $759,900 and occupancy can be arranged.

Charming, historical home near conservation area

It's not often that Charming Historical Homes are replenished with new life and become a harmonic blend of yesteryear, today and the future. Yet, this is what the owners of this exquisite 1885 Italianate have managed to accomplish.

It is located at the very edge of Bear Hill Country Club with woodlands and conservation area to the rear of the property. The property boasts manicured grounds, a child's play area, and a beautifully designed in-ground heated Gunite pool with a large deck area. Careful consideration went into every aspect of this home. Even the deck area for the pool was considered - large enough to walk around and not interfere with lounging.

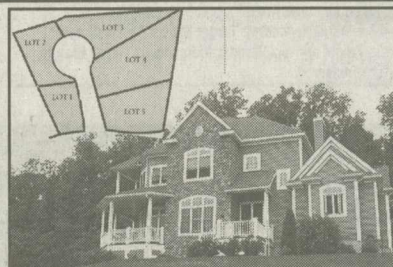

From the street, the home does not appear ostentatious, nor does it hint of the 4200 plus gross living area inside. A modest, Italianate front with the original glass vestibule is what is seen from the street. Upon a second glance you notice the beautiful stonework, the granite stairs and the detail of the style.

Upon entering the home your eyes are drawn to the immense dining room with 10' ceilings, magnificent hand rubbed mahogany stained 8" moldings, the centered ceiling medallion and exquisite chandelier. The dining room seats 22 people comfortably and the ambiance that is created comes from the gas fireplace, the wall sconces, the custom draperies and the
